

Katie became obsessed with performing after seeing Mike Myers in 'Wayne's World' at the age of 13, simultaneously becoming the class clown in high school drama class. She trained in theatre at the University of Southern Queensland, and upon graduating moved to London to perform in independent theatre and stand up comedy. She then relocated to Melbourne, performed her self written one-woman shows in the 2013 & 2014 Melbourne International Comedy Festivals, and was chosen to perform for Triple J on the 2014 Good Az Friday lineup. Since then she has worked in commercials and voice over, with her debut on television as the irrepressible sex worker 'Mullen' in Sexy Herpes.

She looks forward to working in the next big Australian comedy series, and her ultimate goal is to write and direct her own comedy, drama and documentaries.
